

The Norwalk Fire Department will be testing the outdoor warning/tornado sirens Wednesday, March 26 at 10:15 a.m. as part of the 2014 Severe Weather Awareness Week. This is a great opportunity to remind your family of the steps they should take when severe weather strikes.

Remember, the outdoor warning/tornado sirens are meant to alert those outside of an impending tornado and high winds. These sirens are NOT designed to alert residents within their homes. The best in-home alert system is a NOAA Weather Radio.
